POSITIVE NARRATION

Digitability
Be work ready!

WHAT?

Positive narration is the act of describing the positive behaviors you see being exhibited in the classroom.

WHEN?

Immediately after giving a direction to the class, begin looking for who is participating correctly, engaging appropriately, or completing the direction in an expected way.

HOW?

Begin to call out what you see- "I see that Marcus has his hand raised, and he is ready to answer. Great job participating Marcus!"

WHY?

Positive narration can be used when it comes to students who are reinforced by receiving attention because they see other students who are exhibiting positive behaviors receiving attention.

Positive narration also provides a verbal cue for students who may have missed or misheard directions, giving them the opportunity to remain engaged in the activity without being called out or having to ask for repeated directions.
